

This map illustrates the Shengli River basin, a significant water system in northern China. The main river, the Shengli River (潞河), flows from the northwest towards the southeast. It is surrounded by a dense network of tributaries, many of which are labeled with Chinese characters. The map also depicts the surrounding geographical features, including the city of Beijing (北京) and the Tianjin (天津) area. The map is oriented with North at the top.

